

Winter Hyacinths

Blue stalwarts come to chase January – crinkle-mouthed bells cascading my window, parading prim and upright
awash with scent:
what are you promising,
an end to grey?

Stage-struck, you leave me bracing –
bunched harbingers,
carrying summer on your stalks.

Katherine Gallagher