

The Measure – new e-zine of poetry and prose, editor Rod Riesco

Basic principles

1. The magazine will publish poetry, fiction, reviews and essays. It will be sent by email, as an MS Word file attachment with minimal formatting (virus checked), to all subscribers. Anyone wishing to subscribe should notify Rod Riesco by email at measuremag@aol.com.
2. There is no charge to subscribers, and no payment to contributors (except for the pleasure of having their work read by an interested group of subscribers). Contributors will automatically be placed on the list of subscribers.
3. Submissions of up to 3 poems or 1 prose piece at a time may be sent by email to: measuremag@aol.com at any time.
4. Previously published work will be considered, but earlier publication must be fully acknowledged.
5. Writers should submit brief (3 lines) biographical details.
6. Frequency of distribution is expected to be twice per year initially. It may vary depending on the amount of suitable material received.
7. Selection will be according to the personal taste, interests and prejudices of the editor, Rod Riesco.
8. A hard copy version of the magazine, or extracts from it, may be printed subsequently, subject to permission from the contributors concerned.
9. Copyright in work selected for The Measure will remain with the authors; the magazine will acquire single publication rights for the issue in which the work is published.
10. Anyone wishing to terminate their subscription should notify this to measuremag@aol.com at any time.
